The Maddison family had a long history in Partney, the scope of which is outside these notes. A brief ancestry follows:

George Wilson Maddison, Esq., LP., of Partney Hall, was the only son of Colonel George Maddison who purchased the Partney property in 1812. Colonel George Maddison was the second son of Lieutenant-Colonel George Maddison of Stainton Vale and Mary Baugh his wife. He was born in 1762, entered the army in 1779 and retired in 1809, having served in Ceylon, Cape of Good Hope, and the Walcheren campaign. He died in 1816, and is buried at Hertingfordbury, Hertfordshire. His wife, Mary, daughter of the Rev. Henry Alington of Swinhope, died at Partney in 1850, and is buried at Halton Holegate. Mr. G. W. Maddison, besides inheriting the Partney property of his father, succeeded also his uncle, Colonel Thomas Maddison, in lands at Great Steeping. He married Frances Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Alan Bellingham of Castle Bellingham, Ireland, who died at Partney, April 29th, 1886. Mr. Maddison died at Partney, June 10th, 1888, and was buried beside his wife in Partney churchyard. His two elder sons having predeceased him, he was succeeded in the Partney and Great Steeping estates by his third son, Henry George Maddison.

In 1911 Henry was living in Partney with his mother, Clara, his brother Humphrey and his sister Francis. None of the children were married.
